

BIKE POLO

On entend souvent ce début de phrase «in ... , they», quand il est question de parler d'une ville et de sa communauté. Tout a commencé quand Yorgo revint de New York, en disant à ses amis poloïstes anglais «In New York, they...». De là, celle-ci est devenue incontournable quand il s'agit de bien faire remarquer que les choses évoluent dans d'autres villes et de comparer leurs équipements, leurs règles et leurs terrains. Suscitant l'intérêt des joueurs, elle amorce de longues conversations, menant à une motivation commune, qu'on dise du bien de sa ville.

One often hears that sentence "in..., they", when they are talking about a town and its community. It all began when Yorgo came back from New York, telling his British polo playing friends "In New York, they..." From then on, it became the constantly used sentence when trying to express the evolution in other towns, the different gear, their rules, and their courts. A matter of interest for the players, it always starts long conversations amongst them; as their mutual motivation is above all to have good things said about their city.

